Employment information

Policy and Planning Managers are employed by governments and other large organizations to direct the creation of new policies and strategic plans. They lead teams of people in creating and maintaining a cohesive set of policies that reflect the organization's needs and practices. Policy and Planning Managers are strategic thinkers and draw on their extensive experience to craft influential policy.

Policy and Planning Managers in a business context:

Normally this type of employment is in well-established companies at a senior managerial level. For example, Strategic Planning Managers lead their organisation's overall strategic planning effort. They consult with senior Managers to analyse past performance and determine the organisation's best way forward, such as in the management of mergers and acquisitions and the direction of the company's research and development.

They must be able to conduct forecasting, helping senior leaders determine the best opportunities for growth within the business. Strategic Planning Managers usually require many years of business experience, as well as strong interpersonal skills as they interact regularly with customers, suppliers, company executives, Engineers, business professionals, law professionals, and potential partner companies. Experience in marketing and sales may be preferred. Strategic Planning Managers usually have a large number of direct reports, providing guidance and leadership to these employees.

Additional Information

The occupation Policy and Planning Manager requires an organisational chart to be submitted as part of the skills assessment process.

Supporting material for assessment

Applicants nominating this managerial occupation must submit an organizational chart. An organizational chart should include:

- The company letterhead,
- Your job position, and
- The job positions of your superiors and subordinates, as well as,
- All positions reporting to your immediate supervisor and to your direct subordinates.

If you are unable to obtain an organisational chart from your employer, please provide a statutory declaration outlining the required information and the reasons why this information cannot be provided.
