- Monitoring futures prices and market changes, and bidding for commodity futures contracts.
- Recording and transmitting buy and sell orders.
- Calculating and recording costs of transactions.

Tasks performed by an Equities Analyst differ from those listed under this Unit Group and may include, but are not limited to:

- Studying public records of businesses in order to predict companies' future financial performance.
- Writing reports on company finances and describing the investment potential by assigning financial ratings, such as buy, sell, hold, etc.

Employment information

Nomination of the 'not elsewhere classified' (nec) code requires applicants to hold qualifications and employment that do not better fit under any other ANZSCO code.

The occupation of Financial Dealers nec is distinct from other related occupations classified in ANZSCO, such as Financial Market Dealer, Futures Trader, Stockbroking Dealer and Finance Broker.

An Equities Analyst studies and analyses companies in order to determine their overall financial worth. Analysts determine the financial value of a company by scrutinising financial reports and conducting interviews with company management and industry professionals. They are classified into buy-side and sell-side analysts.

Equities Analysts may be employed by securities firms, banks, mutual funds, hedge funds, pension funds, and insurance companies. Since analysts determine a company's worth, their analyses can determine whether or not a company is considered an investment risk.

In addition to evaluating a company's present financial value, Equities Analysts also consider the future worth of a company. Determinations may be made based upon financial statements, sales, costs, and tax information. Analysts may also meet with management in order to gain a better overall financial picture.

Not Elsewhere Classified (nec)

Some occupations assessed by VETASSESS are listed as 'nec' which means 'not elsewhere classified'. If you are nominating one of these occupations, you must ensure that your qualifications and employment are highly relevant to one of the occupation titles given in the ANZSCO description for the particular occupation. Other specific occupation titles which cannot be found elsewhere in ANZSCO will be considered on a case-by-case basis as long as they are relevant to the 'nec' codes. In order to be assessed against an 'nec' code, your occupation would generally be described as nonclassified, yet specialised or related to its ANZSCO Unit Group description.

Your employment in these nominated occupations should not better match another ANZSCO code (whether assessed by VETASSESS or not). When considering whether to nominate an 'nec' occupation, you should consider the sub major group description and determine whether your skills best fit this category.

VETASSESS conducts a case-by-case assessment to determine whether the employment can be considered highly relevant to the classification. If your employment is highly relevant to another ANZSCO occupation, that period of employment cannot be assessed suitably against an 'nec' classification, regardless of whether the occupation is available for migration purposes or not.

You should provide a cover letter that justifies the rationale for choosing an 'nec' category.

Supporting material for assessment

When applying for a Skills Assessment, please ensure you submit sufficient evidence supporting your proof of identity, qualification and employment claims. Applicants nominating this occupation are required to provide evidence in line with VETASSESS documentation requirements (see List of Required Documents).

You should provide a cover letter that justifies the rationale for choosing an 'nec' category.

While the VETASSESS Skills Assessment for migration purposes is distinct from an assessment for licensing or registration purposes, you are advised to provide copies of relevant licences (including from overseas), if held.

You should also provide details of any relevant training or professional development courses undertaken. These may be detailed in the Curriculum Vitae/Resume provided.
